Orange Shirt Day at HCS

Orange Shirt Day at school is a special time when kids come together to learn about the experiences of indigenous children in residential schools, show their love and support, and work towards truth and reconciliation. By wearing orange shirts, we remember the hardships these kids faced and try to put ourselves in their shoes. It's a day when we learn about their stories and cultures, helping us become more understanding and compassionate. We want to ensure that our school is a place where everyone's history and experiences are respected, and that we never let such things happen again. Orange Shirt Day helps us grow as a community that cares, thinks about what others have endured, and strives for truth and reconciliation.
