EGG DROP DAY

In the sixth-grade classroom, students eagerly participated in Egg Drop Day. Earlier that week, they had constructed contraptions using materials like bubble wrap, feathers, and garbage bags to protect an egg. Each contraption had to protect the egg when dropped from four different height levels before it could be deemed effective. On Egg Drop day, anticipation filled the air as the students gathered outside to watch their creations be hoisted and released. Cheers erupted as most eggs survived unscathed. It was a day that showcased the grade 6 students' engineering skills and their spirit of determination.
